What is in season?

We all know eating seasonal fruits and vegetables as Mother Nature intended, is the best way to keep us in good health.

Like all mothers, Mother Nature knows best.

The foods available to us are specific as far as nutrients required for our seasonal health.

Autumn gives us food to start boosting our immune system, gearing us up for the colder winter months.

Foods such as feijoas, mandarins, persimmons kiwi fruit (green & gold), apples, beetroot, kale, broccoli, just to name a few. These all contain high levels of antioxidants and vitamin C. Essential vitamins and minerals required for good immune health.

Meals to start thinking about; soups, curries, vegetable bakes, patties, stews and casseroles. These are great ways to include lots of vegetables into a one meal.

Stews and casseroles are ideal winter food; thick, rich, flavoursome, filling and warming. (Casseroles are cooked in the oven and stews done on the top of the stove.)

There is nothing like coming home on a cold winter's night to a steaming plate of casserole, served with yummy winter vegetables and mashed kumara or potato.

And another great tip is to use any left over's and make a pie.

Naturally Organic stock a large range of different pastries, which is great to have on hand in the freezer.

Lavish Breakfast

Homemade Granola

2 cups of Organic Oats
1 cup of Organic Chopped Cashew or Mixed Nuts
3 tablespoons of Organic Vegetable Oil
9 tablespoons of Organic Honey
2/3 cup chopped fresh Organic Dates
1 teaspoon of dry Organic Ginger
1 cup of Wheatgerm
1 teaspoon of Organic Vanilla Essence

Mix all ingredients together. Spread over a greased baking tray, and cook at 140C for about 50 minutes. Turn frequently to avoid burning.

Leave to cool, and then break into chunks. Store in airtight containers.

Delicious served with organic soy milk or yoghurt. Or try sprinkle as a dessert topping.

Breakfast in Bed

Fish for life

Facts on fish

- For mental health, science suggests that areas with the highest fish consumption have the lowest rates of depression. The Japanese eat the most fish and have the lowest rates of depression in the world.
- Fish rich in omega 3 fatty acids can contribute to the health of brain and eye tissue.
- There is also evidence of cardiovascular benefits.
- Children who eat fish may be less likely to develop asthma.
- Breastfed babies of mothers who eat fish have better eyesight, due to the omega 3 fatty acids transmitted in breast milk.
- Omega 3 fatty acids have a positive effect on your inflammatory response.
- Oily fish have high levels of vitamin A and D. Fish such as salmon and sardines.
- Fish is an excellent source of protein.
- Fish is naturally low in saturated fat and cholesterol.
- Selenium and iodine are essential nutrients found in high levels in fish. Both these nutrients are lacking in NZ soils and are essential for good health.

Ideally you should be consuming fish at least twice a week for optimum health, the inclusion of a supplement may also increase the health benefits listed above.
